A Day in the Life of an Ambassador

WHO ARE YOU? Showing a Worlds of Fun I.D. at Post 8 admits the Ambassador to the park.

YOU DESERVE A BREAK TODAY: Break time is usually spent in the Ambassador's Club where some food and conversation are a relaxing change during some hectic moments at work.

PUNCHING THE CLOCK: In order to receive the correct pay, Ambassadors time in when their shift begins and ends.

MAY I HELP YOU? Ambassadors get their change of costume daily.

The life of a Worlds of Fun Ambassador is far from routine.

Of course, there are those actions that must be repeated daily, like timing in or changing into costume, but those form only a small part of a shift of work at Worlds of Fun.

First of all, each Ambassador has pride in his work and in the park. Welcoming each guest with a smile and helping them enjoy their day at Worlds of Fun displays that pride.

Each Ambassador also has the opportunity to prove himself in a working situation.

Besides that, working at Worlds of Fun is just plain fun. Each Ambassador has the chance to meet all sorts of new people, both guests and fellow Ambassadors, through work and Ambassador activities.

All these factors make a summer of work at Worlds of Fun an enjoyable and memorable experience.

WALKING THE LINE: An Ambassador's job is to make sure that each guest enjoys his day at Worlds of Fun.

End of Season Farewells

Working on the first Worlds of Fun yearbook has been an exciting and, at times, hectic experience . . . for my staff and me.

Since this is a first edition, there are bound to be errors and omissions for which we apologize.

I would like to especially thank those who were instrumental in making this publication possible: Lee Derrough, John Thompson, Beth Henderson, Kris Williams, Ken Stewart, Jodi Light, Ann Chlapek, Linda Neimeyer, Renee Sparks, Mark Linhart, Janita Albright, the department secretaries and Inter-Collegiate Press.
